

Deadline: Wed, July 31, 2024

Info-Session: Tues, July 2 @ 10am CET

Decisions: Sept 2024

Project completion: Oct 2024 – March 2025

This call offers up to 5.000 Euro grants for projects that engage with issues and groups affected by European externalised borders in Southwest Asia and Africa. We are interested in projects that build movement capacity and skills, forge transnational connections, or take resistant action, especially if they directly include impacted groups.

Our thematic interests include, but are not limited to: strategising against anti-rights migration policies; support of queer, women, and gender-diverse displaced people; the militarisation of borders; death and missing persons, and sustainable activism.

Criteria

We only resource projects that:

- Support and/or are led by people who will flee, are fleeing, or have fled to/inside the EU
- Target or weaken isolationist EU migration policies
- Defend the right of freedom of movement, including related themes such as addressing anti-rights policies, migrant empowerment, gender-based violence, community- and movement-building, surveillance practices, climate-based migration, and activating civil society's solidarity

Logistical criteria:

- The project must be able to take place between October 2024 to March 2025
- The project must be applied through an organisation registered in the EU

Evaluation Priorities

We evaluate our decision based on if the applicant meets at least one or several of our priorities:

Systems Change

- Aim at radical political change through addressing root causes of social problems
- Have a structural, rather than merely individual, impact
- Center migrant justice within a broader context intersecting across issues (ex. labor, climate, gender, technology, etc)

Integrity & Accountability

- Reflect their principles & values in internal working structures
- Already have or actively work towards the meaningful participation of impacted displaced groups in their leadership, design, and implementation

Center the Margins

- Are small or informal collectives without much institutional backing yet
- Have little chance of other funding opportunities
- Work in typically under-resourced regions (rural areas, smaller regions, etc)

Use the next 1-3 pages to describe your project using the following key questions.

No specific form is imagined for this. For this section, we also accept video answers in English (max. 10 minutes), which you may email with the rest of your application.

- Why is your project needed? What are the root causes of the problem(s) you address? Is there a wider context to your project? Why are the specific location(s) important?
- Which target groups or what spaces and initiatives will benefit from this project? Do you know how much of your target group you are likely to reach? Are they included in the process of designing and implementing your project, and how?
- What are the values in the team organising this project? How will you work together internally?
- What is the short- and long-term impact of your project, whether within your group or externally to broader communities/society? Will you be able to measure it in some way, whether through changing hearts and minds, or concrete numbers?

Examples of indicators: # of people mobilized, benefited, serviced; # of presentations, audience members, items created or distributed; financial impact; media coverage; policy change; access to training; narrative change within relevant fields; relationships between communities and ecosystems; participant satisfaction.

Answer the key questions from the previous page.
